Transite Technology Signs Pergo Flooring to Provide Transportation Management Technologies and Services

Pergo is the world's leading producer of residential laminate flooring.

RALEIGH, NC—May 14, 2008—Transite Technology, a leading provider of transportation management solutions, has been chosen by Pergo Inc., the world's leading producer of residential laminate flooring, to reduce the cost of their North American transportation and shipping, while streamlining their transportation management processes.

“Pergo is aggressive in implementing ways to reduce cost and strengthen our organizational capabilities,” said David Rawls, director of transportation at Pergo. “Transportation management is an area where smart application of the right technologies and services can yield quick results both in process efficiencies and expense reductions.”

Transite's My Freight Portal, Contract Manager and additional products and services help companies obtain the least-cost methods and carriers for every customer order while increasing a company's ability to manage their shipping logistics and offer better customer service through visibility of the entire shipping process.

“Transite is fundamental in Pergo's ability to have cost-focus and visibility within the transportation component of their supply chain,” said Geoff Comrie, CEO of Transite. “While companies typically look to lower the cost of their products by focusing on raw materials and product manufacturing processes, progressive companies like Pergo are now applying the same science and rigor when it comes to shipping and transportation.”

Transite continues a string of strong vendor wins--Matheson Trucking, Toyo Tire and others--while introducing additions to its market offerings such as optimization and the industry's first rate aggregation solution, My Freight Rates.
